Who does the cooking in your house?! @dad.ventures is the main chef in our home and the kids love to help any chance they get! They always have a million different questions about how things are made, what ingredients he's using and more! I love how we get all different kinds of questions with such a big age range in our house! From the billions of silly little questions about every little thing from the toddler, like why, why, why to the very detailed, intricate questions from

Kai googled "where do baby's come from when she was 6." I wish we would have told her some more of the truth. The videos that came up were awful

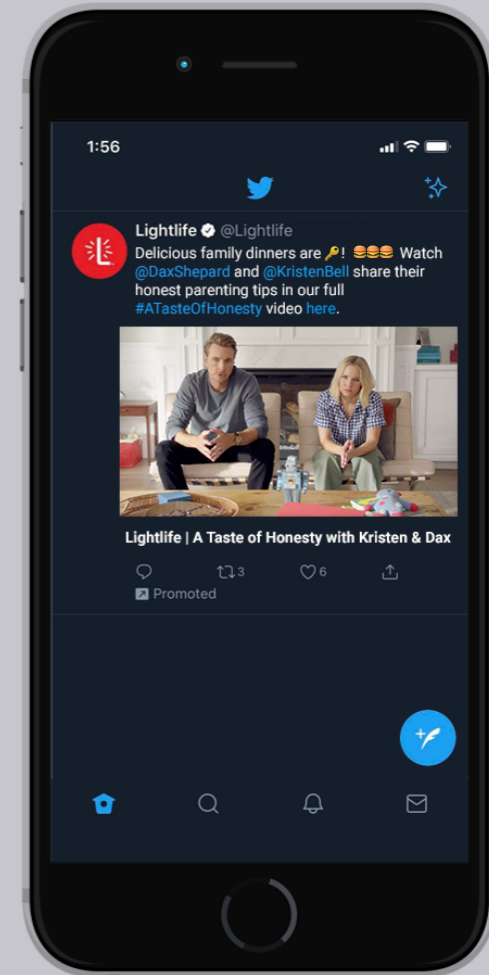

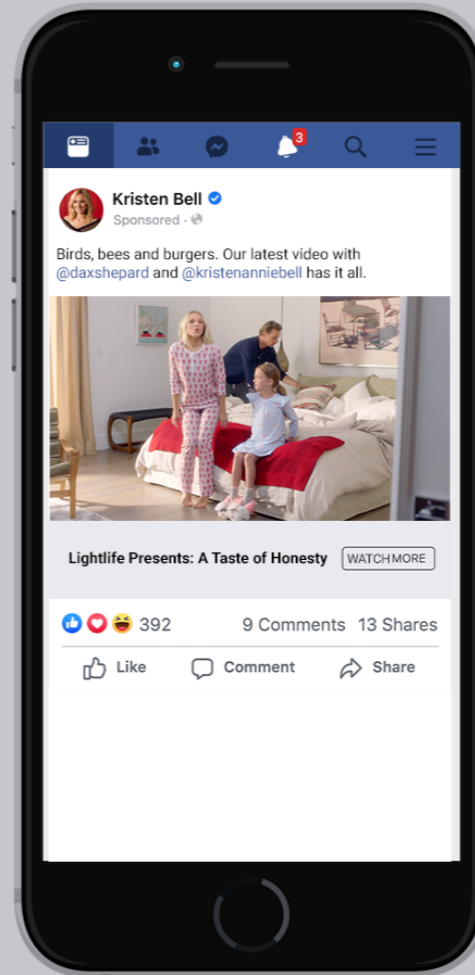

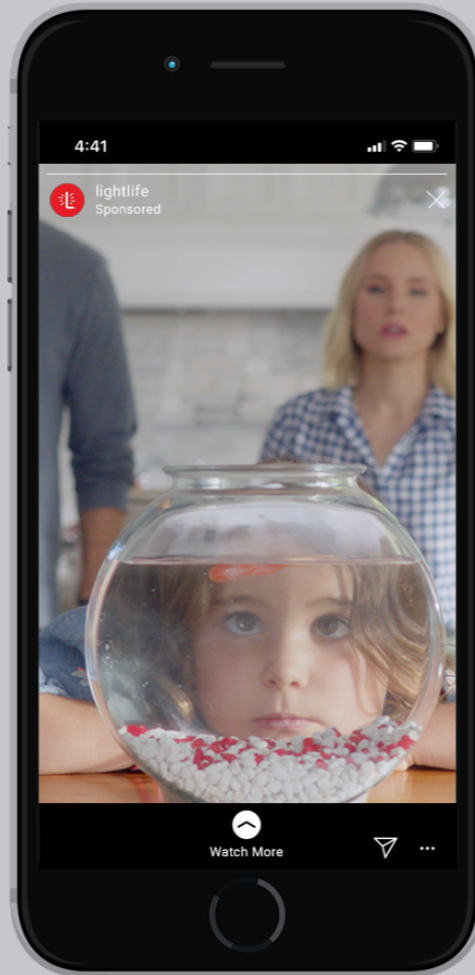

That's a great way to approach

I love this! So important to have your kids express themselves
